

Creating learning resources that include third party text and artistic works

Use this flowchart if you wish to upload teaching resources that include third party text and artistic works (ie material where the copyright is not owned by your TAFE) to a password protected digital teaching environment (DTE).

Are you able to create your own version or use public domain material, Creative Commons (CC) material or link to it instead?

YES

NO

Link

Linking is okay as it is not a copyright activity.

Copyright has expired

Material in which copyright has expired is free to use.

Creative Commons (CC)

Free to use provided you comply with licence conditions.

Create your own version

TAFE owned material can be used however you would like, but label.

Have you got permission to use the image or can you seek permission?

If YES, use in accordance with the permission or seek permission.

If NO, you may be able to rely on the Statutory Text and Artistic Works Licence (s 113P).

If you are not using any third party material (ie your resource only includes TAFE owned content), you can use the resource however you like. However, we recommend you license your resource under a Creative Commons (CC) licence.

Remember you must attribute all the materials you use. For more information on attribution, see Labelling and Attributing.
